

Secrets of Successful Advertising

THE NEXT best thing to showing the article itself is to show a good picture of it. Most advertisements can be made stronger by good illustration. In selecting illustrations, try to get those that not only illustrate the actual goods you are advertising but that, in addition, illustrate some good feature of the goods, or show them in use. Don't be like the advertiser who used a cut of an elephant in his watch advertisements because, as he said, he "had to use something."

Don't use an illustration of a long-sleeved shirt waist if the waist you are describing has short sleeves. Ask the companies from whom you buy to supply you some first-class illustrations of the goods they sell. In buying stock-cuts, get the best. You can afford to have at least a few special illustrations made; these, if first class, will give your advertisement some individuality.

Most illustrations are poor because (1) they are merely eye-catchers and do not truly illustrate the goods advertised, or (2) because they are made from poor drawings, or (3) because the artist made the very common error of introducing much so-called ornamentation or useless detail that not only takes up valuable space but actually detracts from the value of the illustration. Let the illustration be simple and bold, and put the picture of the article in the foreground. If you are advertising a woman's shoe, it may be necessary to show the woman's ankle in order to demonstrate the graceful appearance of the shoe when on the foot, but it is not necessary to include a scene of a parlor with a party of friends sitting around.

Compare the two advertisements shown here. One is a specimen of good illustration, good copy and good arrangement. The other is a very common specimen of poor illustration, weak, general copy, and poor arrangement.

PARDON ISSUED.

Governor Extends Clemency To Mrs. Hollowell.

INDICTED FOR BED SCRAPING AT PRINCETON.

COURT OF APPEALS AFFIRMS LOUISVILLE CASE.

BRADLEY & GILBERT LOSE.

Frankfort, Ky., May 28.—(Special.)—Believing that she was a victim of persecution by the sympathizers of the night riders, Gov. Wilson today pardoned Mrs. Mary Lou Hollowell, formerly of Caldwell county, who was indicted on the charge of accessory before the fact to the scraping of plant beds in that county. Mrs. Hollowell was charged with the scraping of the plant beds of J. E. Hollowell and the men were convicted. Mrs. Hollowell is the wife of Robert Hollowell who secured a judgment in the Federal Court for $25,000 against alleged night riders who shot up the Hollowell home.

The Hollowells lived in Caldwell county and Mrs. Hollowell gave testimony before the grand jury regarding the raid of the night riders when the stemwheeler at Princeton were burned more than a year ago. It was charged that on account of her testimony, she was the object of hatred by the night riders and the sympathizers. One night a crowd of men went to the Hollowell home and shot up the place. Mrs. Hollowell took Robert Hollowell out and whipped him severely. Later J. E. Hollowell was indicted for the scraping of the plant beds and was indicted by the grand jury in the fall of 1907. In a few days after her husband had been whipped, strong pressure was brought to bear on the Governor to have him grant a pardon to Mrs. Hollowell. It was claimed that Mrs. Hollowell was not guilty and the indictment was a matter of spite because of her position regarding the tobacco growers' organization.

In issuing the pardon, Gov. Wilson wrote the following reasons: "Whereas, upon the facts presented to me and my knowledge of the current history of Caldwell county, I am satisfied that the parties who obtained this indictment did not obtain it for the purpose of punishing Mrs. Hollowell for the alleged scraping of plant beds, but for the purpose of punishing her for her position regarding the tobacco growers' organization, and for this reason, I now grant a complete and full pardon to Mrs. Mary Lou Hollowell, her heirs, assigns, and in said indictment, this May 28, 1908. AUGUSTUS E. WILSON.

Printing Firm Loses.

In the Court of Appeals to-day the principle of law that a contract made with the city, where any person interested in it is a citizen, is a contract with the city, was reaffirmed. The case was the Bradley & Gilbert Company against Charles N. Jackson, an appeal from the Circuit Court. The case was brought by the Bradley & Gilbert Company, alleging that George B. Jackson, in 1904, made a contract with the city of Louisville for the printing of the city directory. The contract provided that the Bradley & Gilbert Company should print the directory for the year 1905. The contract was made for the sum of $1,000. The Bradley & Gilbert Company alleged that Jackson failed to pay for the directory. Jackson alleged that the contract was void because he was not a citizen of the city of Louisville.

The court held that the contract was valid and that Jackson was liable for the sum of $1,000. The court also held that the Bradley & Gilbert Company was entitled to interest on the sum of $1,000. The court affirmed the judgment of the Circuit Court.

The court also held that the Bradley & Gilbert Company was entitled to interest on the sum of $1,000. The court affirmed the judgment of the Circuit Court.

SELECTIONS FOR TO-DAY.

First Race—Serenade, Elysium, Transferron.
Second Race—Boerian, Beth Godwin, Toddy Hodge.
Third Race—Sir Clegis, Pinkola, Chulita.
Fourth Race—Dell Leath, Waterway, Jason.
Fifth Race—Lillie Turner, Hannibal Boy, Frontenac.
Sixth Race—The Thorn, Funiculaire, Lady Arden.
Two Best Races—Serenade, Lillie Turner.

NE incident at the Downs yesterday that excited considerable comment was the performance of Apache, the favorite in the third race. The son of Ethelbert was heavily played, and the running of the race showed him to be of superior quality in his field, but, unfortunately, he went to the post without the proper equipment—that is, his jockey, and when he reached the top of the stretch he bolted for the outside fence and lost the race.

The gelding was leading his field by five lengths at this point, and he was running easily and nothing but an accident, which happened, could have lost the race. After he was straightened out again and sent after the leaders, who by this time had gained a dozen lengths or more, he demonstrated his ability by getting up in time to get show money, being better by two heads on the wire for first honors.

Form players had another bad day. Sempron, perhaps the most disappointing favorite outside of Apache, the Schreiber filly gave her backers some hope at the start, but was not willing to outpace the other horses in the last quarter and was out of the race at the finish. Several close races and the race was exciting, even if it did result in financial loss for the majority of spectators. In the first event Sempron was a good deal of a long time before he began to go to the front and he had only a neck to spare at the end.

The weather was warm, but a cool breeze from the west was just what was needed to make it an ideal day for the enjoyment of the sport.

Sempron Takes Opener.

Fifteen 2-year-old colts, including seven that were making their first appearance, took issue in the first race that was considered to be a close finish, Sempron getting the verdict by a narrow margin. Some of the youngsters seemed to be badly in need of schooling, which caused a delay of three minutes at the post and a bad start.

Roseburg, a Dick Welles colt, belonging to Home Respects, broke fast when the gate went up and rushed into the lead in the first few yards, but was not able to hold the lead, and the colt was not up to the pace in the last quarter and was out of the race at the finish.

Old Hickory suffered by the poor start and was off in the middle of the bunch. Pickens, however, put up a good ride and he was gaining on the leaders at the end of the race, but he was not able to hold the lead, and the colt was out of the race at the finish.

Another Close Finish.

The second race resulted in another close finish and defeat for the talent, but there is no doubt that the best horse won. The winner was John Louis, from the farm of J. H. Brown, who was off to the start, and he was not able to hold the lead, and the colt was out of the race at the finish.

Apache Runs Out.

By running out at the head of the stretch, Apache, the heavily-played favorite, was in a position to win the race, but he was not able to hold the lead, and the colt was out of the race at the finish.

last sixteen secured the show money, only beaten by a neck and a nose for first money.

The winner, ran in second place all the way and fought it out with the latter showed in the last quarter, when Apache ran out, but could not still the rush of the winner, and the colt was out of the race at the finish.

Topsy Robinson Scores.

The fourth race on the card, a selling affair at six furlongs, turned the tide for the talent when Topsy Robinson, whom they had selected, came home in front to easy victory. A number of scratches had reduced the large field, and speculation was being done on the wire for the race.

The gelding was leading his field by five lengths at this point, and he was running easily and nothing but an accident, which happened, could have lost the race. After he was straightened out again and sent after the leaders, who by this time had gained a dozen lengths or more, he demonstrated his ability by getting up in time to get show money, being better by two heads on the wire for first honors.

Form players had another bad day. Sempron, perhaps the most disappointing favorite outside of Apache, the Schreiber filly gave her backers some hope at the start, but was not willing to outpace the other horses in the last quarter and was out of the race at the finish.

Camille Beats St. Valentine.

The final race of the day brought together nine good campaigners for the mile and an eighth route, and the form players scored another defeat. St. Valentine, the favorite, was heavily played, and the running of the race showed him to be of superior quality in his field, but, unfortunately, he went to the post without the proper equipment—that is, his jockey, and when he reached the top of the stretch he bolted for the outside fence and lost the race.

After he was straightened out again and sent after the leaders, who by this time had gained a dozen lengths or more, he demonstrated his ability by getting up in time to get show money, being better by two heads on the wire for first honors.

Another Good Card To-day.

A cross-country race for the timbreltoppers is the feature of today's card at the track, and a purse race at six furlongs and one at a mile and a sixteenth give promise of good contests. The steeplechase will be over the short course and the light starters have been named: Topsy Robinson, Dell Leath, Jason, Waterway and Coal Black Lady. Dell Leath, who was the favorite in the first race, showed up to good advantage and finished second, but he was not able to hold the lead, and the colt was out of the race at the finish.
